Examines the life of the talented black athlete who broke the color barrier in major league baseball by joining the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947. Today many children dream of playing professional baseball. Perhaps you are one of them. If you have good athletic skills and you work hard, your Jackie Robinson was an African American professional baseball player who broke Major Leagues Baseball's infamous "color barrier" when he started at first base for the Brooklyn Dodgers on April 15, 1947. Until that time, professional ballplayers of color suited up for teams only in the Negro Leagues. Today, April 15th is observed as Jackie Robinson Day throughout MLB franchises, with players wearing the former Dodgers's jersey number 42. Like Jackie Robinson, these four men had to deal with unimaginable pressure. They all had teammates who wouldn't shake their hands or play catch with them. They all had fans who ridiculed and threatened them with every slur in the book. None of them could stay in the same hotels ...read more. Negro League Baseball.
