Picture what your perfect ESL classroom would be like. My perfect classroom is learner-centered, a place where students develop the communication skills that will enable them to become increasingly more autonomous and less dependent on you. It has six to eight well-behaved students sitting around one big, long table in a bright room with plenty of space for them and for me to walk around in. But ESL classrooms are not perfect. Instead of dreaming about the kind of classroom we'd love to have, let's focus on the one we do have and how to make it truly learner-cent
