This includes their real name, address, phone number, financial information, school name, passphrases or other private information. Reinforce that children should talk openly with their parents or guardian about what they see online and should always tell them if anyone asks for personal information or makes them feel uncomfortable. Students must commit to follow the family and school rules set up to keep everyone safe while online. C-SAVE. Middle and High School Teaching Resources. The Grades 3â€5 resource guide, like all the other Safe & Caring Schools volumes, is structured to be student-centered. The activities create opportunities for students to ask questions, discuss their interests, and find out what motivates them to get along with others. The lessons help students improve their social skills and use them as they practice teambuilding, communication techniques, deal with friendship issues, and express their feelings in appropriate ways.
