Introduction The housing market and the housing system in London are different from other parts of the country. Since 1974 they have been regulated by the Housing Corporation (a government appointed quango) and funded by a combination of grants from the Corporation and local authorities, and, since the late 1980s, loans from private financial institutions. The majority of their tenants rely on Housing Benefit to help with all or part of their rent, and therefore, in terms of both capital and revenue finance, housing associations are heavily dependent on state support. Rent increases in private rented housing. There are detailed rules governing the review and raising of private rents. Rent books. In general, tenants are legally entitled to a rent book, which records the rent paid and must contain specific information. Housing Assistance Payment. The Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) is a form of social housing support provided by all local authorities. The rules that private landlords and housing associations must comply with when ending a residential tenancy. Resolving disputes between landlords and tenants. The Residential Tenancies Board provides a dispute resolution service for landlords and tenants in private rented accommodation and housing association tenancies. Sharing accommodation with your landlord. Now, since buying a house is nothing less than a dream for most us, Mr. X also does not want to settle for anything less than, and decides to buy a house in the same location as his current apartment. For this, he decides to take a big loan. Now, the house that Mr. X decides to buy costs Rs. It better to own your house through a loan because after years it will be all yours and you won't have to pay for it anymore but the rented house will always be on rent and you will be paying for it for as long as you live there so i think it's pretty clear which one is the best option. 83 views.
