With that, a California man admitted to the murders of an engaged couple shot in the head at close range as they slept on a beach in Jenner 15 years ago. The 2004 murders stumped law enforcement for more than a decade before a now-40-year-old survivalist was arrested for the fatal shooting of his brother in 2017. Fish head beach had its own visitor book in which both Cutshall and Allen had penned entries. Both thanked God for creating such an amazing world and Jason expressed thanks for his fiancÃ©e. It is unknown whether or not the pair had planned to sleep out on the beach that night, but they did, in separate sleeping bags under the stars. It has been speculated that they were turned away from a local motel called â€œThe rivers endâ€ due to lack of vacancies and decided to spend a night on the beach.Â He became a suspect in the slaying of Lindsay Cutshall and Jason Allen when he revealed details of the crime to police that nobody but the killer could know. He allegedly passed a note to one of the guards incriminating himself.
