A book from the stand-up mathematician that makes math fun again! Math is boring, says the mathematician and comedian Matt Parker. Part of the problem may be the way the subject is taught, but it's also true that we all, to a greater or lesser extent, find math difficult and counterintuitive. Everything here starts with things you can really make and do. You can build a 4D object, you can dissect counter-intuitive shapes and you can tie unbelievable knots. A book is also an amazing piece of technology with a state-of-the-art pause function. If you do want to stop and play around with a bit of maths for a while, you can. The book will sit here, the words static on the page, waiting for you to return. You can make do by using other products in their place. You can also ask for free samples of things at makeup stores, make your own, or buy things on clearance. Ask for birthday gift vouchers to department or beauty stores too. Thanks! Use Visine before applying makeup to make your eyes whiter, brighter, and more awake. This also helps keep eyes lubricated throughout the day to prevent drying-out due to the makeup. Thanks! However, makeup making proved to be a success! In about an hour I was able to make a concealer, makeup, and airbrushing powder. I'm in my mid-30s with some large pores and fine lines showing. I found the dry mineral makeup was too dry and settled in my imperfections too much. Will attempt cleanser next. Lots of background information in the book so you understand what you are doing and why. Read more. 2 people found this helpful. "How do you do your eye makeup?" is what you might ask someone when you want to know how they achieve a certain look. To me, "how do you put on your eye makeup" doesn't work as well in that context. It sounds more like you're asking what tool they use to apply it (a brush, a sponge, etc.). Lun-14. Perhaps you could explain why you're saying that "wearing" is not correct. The use of "wear" as a verb with makeup is normal (as is put on), and I hear it most often. verbs for make-up? (post#2). fiercediva. Senior Member. Makeup book.
