Mary Mouse is a fictional character "imagined" by Enid Blyton, a prolific British children's author, in the mid 20th century. Mary Mouse is a mouse exiled from her hole who becomes a maid at the dolls' house, employed by Sailor Doll. Loved mainly by girls, this character's memory has lived on. The original books are highly collectable, perhaps because few remain in reasonable condition. The books were immensely popular in Blyton's days and eventually sold in a million copies. Maybe they missed the point of it, I don't know, but she's definitely not interested in reading it again. Read more. A companion picture book to Mary and the Mouse, the Mouse and Mary, Maria that makes for perfect bedtime reading! In this companion to the acclaimed picture book Mary and the Mouse, the Mouse and Mary, Maria (Mary's daughter) and Mouse Mouse (Mouse's daughter) are looking for their mothers. They're not in their bedrooms, their car and cart are still in the driveway, and they are not in the gazebo or under the mushroom!Â Well, turns out Mary and the Mouse are great friends"just like Maria and Mouse Mouse"and soon the new generation is in on the old generation's secret, and vice versa. Sparingly told and beautifully illustrated, this book is every bit as charming as its predecessor. Kids will pore over the minute details of a mouse's parallel world.
