The soundtrack to the award-winning cartoon Bluey has debuted at No.1 on the ARIA album charts, becoming the first children's album ever to hit top spot. The album features 17 compositions from the show's first series, including an extended theme tune. Joff Bush says he tries to compose music for the show that will add an extra layer to the storytelling. "It helps create another world, especially in scenes where Bluey and her little sister Bingo are playing imaginary games," he said. And just like Bluey and Bingo, everything turns out OK, even when they might appear less than perfect. "I like to leave in all the homeliness and all the imperfections in the music," he Bush said.
