Problem: It's the wrong Federally funded research and development centers (FFRDCs) are public-private partnerships which conduct research and development for the United States Government. Under Federal Acquisition Regulation § 35.017, FFRDCs are operated by universities and corporations to fulfill certain long-term needs of the government "which cannot be met as effectively by existing in-house or contractor resources". While they are in many ways similar to University Affiliated Research Centers, FFRDCs are prohibited from See what's new with book lending at the Internet Archive. There are already so many examples of federally-funded research making our Nation and our economy stronger. That's why I'm very glad to see Dr. Vint Cerf here today. It really was not Al Gore; it was Vint Cerf who, at DARPA, started the whole Internet business. Thank you for holding this hearing to consider the Federal role in scientific research and development and how best to capitalize on Federal investments. I join you in welcoming our witnesses to today's hearing, which presents us with a good opportunity to discuss the impact of the. VerDate Nov 24 2008. 13:46 Aug 07, 2015.
